

Student professionalism matters

Consultation
now open

Medical Schools
Council

General Medical
Council

As a medical student, there are certain expectations of you that go beyond what people expect of other students. Because we want to ensure the students of today are the excellent doctors of tomorrow, we've produced new guidance to help you on this journey.

We've also updated our guidance for medical schools for times when they have concerns about students' professional conduct.

Respond to the consultation by 11 November

We're now consulting on both of these publications and it's really important we hear what you think.

Please take part in this consultation at www.gmc-uk.org/studentprofessionalism

